THE COURT CASE

Again: the Hocking Valley Decided in the Supreme Court.

The matter of the Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railway company against Franklin Court in error to the circuit court of this county was heard in the supreme court Tuesday. Judgment was reversed and the case remanded to the court of common pleas for a new trial, on the ground that the plaintiff's own evidence showed that he was guilty of contributory negligence.

This case will be remembered by STAR readers as the one brought by Franklin Court some five or six years ago for damages to his person and property, the result of an accident which occurred to him on the Prospect pike.

While returning to his home southwest of the city about dusk, a northbound Hocking Valley passenger train train struck his rig, a two-horse wagon, and not only killed his horse and smashed his wagon but also injured him.

At the trial of the case in the common pleas court, Court received a verdict for $150. The railroad company carried the case to the circuit court, which affirmed the judgment of the lower court and the case having been taken to the supreme court by the company, that tribunal sends it back for a new trial as before stated.

Messrs. Johnston & Young represent Mr. Court while the railroad company is represented by J. F. McNeal & Sons, although through the lower courts the old firm of McNeal & Wolford acted for the railroad company.

MR. BABST DROPS OUT

JOHN TOD NOW HAS THE NYPANO ALL TO HIMSELF.

The Terms of Settlement Were Reached Shortly Before Noon Today—The Matter Ends With Credit to Both Sides—What It Costs.

The much discussed Nypano receivership case is at an end, the case having been practically settled a little before the noon hour today.

The exact amount to be paid by the railroad company cannot be determined until 4:30 o'clock, this afternoon, at which time Mr. Babst will arrive from Crestline and make his report as receiver, the amount to be paid by the company depending upon the costs and expenses incurred by him during his receivership.

Mr. Cushing, of Cleveland, representing the Erie, was seen by a STAR scribe at noon but would not say what were the terms of settlement. The most that could be elicited from him was that the terms of settlement had been arrived at and that the settlement would be fully perfected upon the arrival of Mr Babst at 4:30 o'clock in time for him, Mr. Cushing, to take the 5:25 Big Four for Cleveland.

Mr. W. E. Scolield was next phoned but that gentleman would not admit any settlement, saying that settlement could not be made until the arrival of the much-wanted Mr. Babst.

Mr. Durfee, the second party of the firm of Scofield, Durfee & Scolield, was next interviewed and some light was thrown on the matter. Mr. Durfee stated that the STAR could say that both the Hoffman case and the McPherson branch of it had been settled and that the only thing wanting was the receiver's report in order that the amount of the costs might be determined.

When asked what the terms of settlement were he said that he would not answer that question; that the terms of settlement would not be made public until tomorrow at the time of putting on file the journal entry of settlement.

He said, however, that their clients had received all that they asked for: that they had the railroad company on the hip and did not settle until inducements were offered them to settle, and ending by saying that it might be positively stated that the receivership of Mr. Babst would end before night.

When asked concerning the injunction allowed by Judge Voris of the Summit county court of common pleas, enjoining Mr. Babst from interfering with John Tod as receiver of the Nypano, Mr. Durfee stated that it would never be served as service had been stopped by the attorneys of the road pending settlement.

Although it has not been possible to obtain the exact terms of settlement, the STAR, anxious to place the terms of settlement before its readers, has acquired, after persistent inquiry, the following information:

By the settlement the claim of John Hoffman of $5,500 is paid in full, John McPherson receives $2,500, Mr. Babst as receiver will be paid liberal compensation for his services, say about $1000 and his attorney fees and the railroad will pay all costs, not only costs incurred in this court, but also the costs incurred in the McPherson case in the U. S. circuit court at Toledo.

While these figures may vary slightly from the figures to be made public tomorrow the terms of settlement, are to all intents and purposes, as above given.

The settlement brings credit to both sides. Scofield, Durfee & Scofield are well pleased with the settlement as are also J. F. McNeal & Sons and Attorney Cushing, for this matter was terribly annoying to the road, even preventing it from floating bonds, and the present ending of the case is the easiest way out of the difficulty.

Missionary Ladies at Prospect.

The ladies of the Home Missionary society of the M. E. church report a very enjoyable time at the district meeting of that society in Prospect Wednesday afternoon.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. DaVall, of Delaware. Mrs. A. D. Matthews, of this city, lead the afternoon devotional services, and the evening services were lead by Rev. A. C. Barnes. The ladies were entertained at the city hall by the ladies of the M. E. church at Prospect and both dinner and supper were served them. The next meeting is to be held in Marysville, in December, 1896.

Where Is James Mansfield?

Sheriff Rice has a letter from Attorney John C. Brown, of Willow Springs, Mo., making inquiry as to the whereabouts of Richard Mansfield, who resided in this county in 1850. If Mr Mansfield is dead, there is a desire to hear from his heirs, as there is some land in Missouri in his name.

Sheriff Rice has found no one who knows or remembers Mansfield, but it struck him that the newspapers might discover some one who does. Hence this inquiry.

The Daughters of America will give a social at their hall on Thursday evening, at which time an elaborate program will be followed by supper. The program promises a highly pleasurable evening, being replete with music, recitations and addresses. Program opens promptly at 7:30. The public is invited. Admission 10 cents for adults and 5 cents for children, which includes refreshments.

PROSPECT NEWS.

What Is Transpiring in Prospect—Church and School Matters.

Prospect, Dec. 11.—The readings and lecture given by Francis S. Fox, A. M., on Wednesday evening last, was highly appreciated by a large audience. He is a fine impersonator. His description of expression is such as to interest, and direct thought. The need of proper gestures, and countenance was shown, by referring to Christ, the model teacher. His selections were various, applicable to young, middle aged and old. The married and unmarried were especially remembered.

Do not fail to attend the teachers' institute here on Saturday, Dec. 14. Every teacher come. A fine program is prepared.

Each of the churches is arranging a nice program for Christmas.

The Baptist Sunday school will give a cantata, "Santa Claus' Arrival." The M. E. Sunday school will give the program, "Around the World with Christmas." The Reform Sunday school will have an excellent program. The Lutheran Sunday school will render a program, "Good Tiding of Great Joy." The Presbyterian Sunday school is practicing to afford a treat for the children.

On Dec. 4 Mrs. J. B. Miller gave a dinner in honor of her sister, Mrs. Zachman. Those present were: Mrs. Millie Wyatt, Mrs. Emma Dana, Mrs. J. F. Wottring, Mrs. G. F. Gast, Mrs. D. Gast, Mrs. Wardloe, and Mrs. D. S. Grube. Such a bounteous repast as that prepared by the hostess was alarming to the guests, because of the many delightful courses served. No more pleasant time was ever had. All the ladies are speaking in praise of the pudding pie. It makes the writer hungry.

S. M. Kaub and family have returned to Prospect to live. There is no place like it. He has been conducting a tailor shop at Celina, O. We are glad to welcome them back to our village.

Elmer Bondley, who has been working with his cousin for the Sopolio Co. was greeted by his parents on last week. He will remain with his parents until January 1st, when he will resume his work. He is a model young man and we are all glad to learn of his success.

Miss Maggie Stiller gave a dinner because of Mrs. Wardloe, Mrs. D. Gast, Mrs. G. F. Gast, and Mrs. Amos Stiller. Mrs. Wardloe is a sister of Mrs. D Gast, and is spending several weeks here and at Marysville with relatives.

The winter season is the time for special enjoyment.

Mr. Cranston, from Union county who is fitting up a buggy room, and for farm implements, in C. Neimeyer's room, moved into the Sam Keller property on east Water street on Friday last. He is said to be an excellent young man. We wish him success.

The first quarterly meeting of the M. E. church at Prospect was held on last Sabbath. Dr. Avann, the new presiding elder, was present to conduct the services morning and evening. He conducted the love feast and sacrament in the morning. A large audience was present. In the evening he preached one of his excellent sermons to a large appreciating audience. We trust great good will be accomplished through the efforts of our beloved pastor and elder.

Delaware district meeting of Woman's Home Missionary society was held here on last Wednesday. An excellent program had been prepared. The day was very stormy, which prevented some from coming. The ladies of this place entertained those from abroad at the township house. We always look after visitors.

Boston Common In a Bad Way.

Poor old Common! Every day makes it more dismal, more degraded, more unsightly, more utterly abominable, and the worst of it is that we can form only a distant notion of what it is going to be after all this rubbish is dumped upon it. We are promised that it is to emerge from this conflagration more beautiful than ever, but to believe in this promise is almost as great a strain on the faith as to look forward to the literal realization of the Bon and Isaiah millennium in the next century, in the midst of gathering clouds of class hatred. There seems to be too much dirt already and far too much coming. The depressions of the Common have always been one of its greatest beauties—the chance to see something like a valley is a relief in the city, and the hills of the Common would not be much if it were not for the hollows. So, if the present effect is to be retained much of the dirt, it would seem, must go to the hills, and if it does they will not be the same hills.—Boston Transcript.

Church Dedication.

What was formerly known as the Shiloh M. E. church, located about four miles southwest of Green Camp, has been purchased by the Free Baptists of that locality, and will be dedicated next Sunday, December 15at 11 o'clock a. m. The dedicatory sermon will be delivered by Rev. J. A Sutton.

On the same day, at 2:30 p. m., Rev Levi Davis will be ordained to the christian ministry, Rev. Gow, of Green Camp, preaching the ordination sermon.

What Shower Stick.

Early this week the STAR made mention of an umbrella which was dropped through the cellar grating in front of the U. S. Auction Syndicate. Last night the party who took the umbrella went into Layton's store and laying down the umbrella said: "There's the umbrella you've been making such a fuss about," but denied having told the little girl that she could not get it until the next day as she claimed at the time.

A POOR ATTENDANCE

AT THE THIRTEENTH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE FARMERS.

The Sessions Wednesday and Today Were None the Less Interesting on That Account—Farm Topics Discussed by Able Speakers.

The evening session of the first day of the Farmers' Institute did not bring out the audience which the excellence of the program demanded.

It is hard to explain why the attendance at the present institute has been so light. Certainly it cannot be ascribed to the programs offered, for they have been exceptionally good. The slim attendance of Wednesday night may have been caused by the early hour announced for the meeting as the citizens of Marion are much more inclined to patronize an entertainment billed to commence at 8:30 p. m. than one billed for 6:30 o'clock, as was the one in question.

Though the audience was a poor one, strange to say it did not have the usual depressing effect upon the speakers. Both Prof. Hunt and Mr. Green talked interestingly and entertainingly. So far as they were concerned, it might be assumed that hundreds were present.

The subject of Prof. Hunt's address "A Problem in Intensive Agriculture" and that he handled the subject ably goes without saying.

The idea of his address was to stimulate the farmer to get the very most out of the soil and to show the possibilities cited several instances where the earth had responded nobly to the tickle of the plow.

He told of one market gardener in Wisconsin who had raised in one year garden produce to the value of $16,000 from thirty acres of land and referred to another case where the soil had raised three crops in one year.

By this showing what had been accomplished he made it plain how possible it was to make the returns to the farmers the heaviest, how it was possible to make the harvests truly golden.

Prof. Hunt speaks with that certainty which should captivate. He tells facts and does not conjecture, and, for that reason his talk should bear added weight upon his audience.

Owing to the failure of Prof. Powell to put in an appearance his place was acceptably filled by I. G. Evans, with a recitation entitled "Opposing Views of Farm Life."

The closing oratorical number of the program was an address by J. G. Green, of Sandusky City—"The Citizen Farmer."

Mr. Green has a tendency to become flowery and it is a tendency which he may well bow down to. He is a poet, although the thought may never have much impressed him.

In opening, Mr. Green recalled how he stood on the peak of Lookout mountain and beheld state after state blessed with fertile soil which was yielding bountiful returns to the seed grain which had been entrusted to it. He told how he could see the evidences of the wealth of the country's crops reaching out on all sides, dotted here and there with city and village, where amid the throb of industry the crops were exchanged for gold, and from that he gradually came up to the point that the farmer paid not enough attention to the management of this broad domain which we have styled "The Home of the Free."

He said that it was the duty of the farmer to take more interest in politics. That nothing was perfect, but that it should be the farmer's endeavor to see that the laws of his state and country were as near perfection as possible.

All great results in our country's history, he said, had been accomplished through some political party and it should be the farmer's pride to do his share to look after the country's welfare. He advocated the attendance of the farmer at the election primary and at the polls and said that they should see that men were elected to make laws which should be no more friendly to others than to the farmer.

It pleased him that he was able to state that for the first time in the history of the state the farmers outnumbered the lawyers in the lower branch of the general assembly, the proportion being twenty-nine to twenty-six. He was glad to state also that nine farmers had seats in the state senate.

All laws, he explained, were good, bad or compromises: that most of them were compromises; that while the constitution of the United States was a radical improvement over the Magna Charta of King John, yet it was only a compromise and might be improved upon.

He proved his position with regard to the constitution by citing how, to please one faction, representation was given to each state equally in the senate and, to please the other faction of that convention, which framed the constitution, the representation of the various states in the house of representatives was made in proportion to the respective population of the several states.

It would be impossible to make plain to the reader the many telling points made by Mr. Green, suffice it is to say that he is a most entertaining speaker and amply repaid those present for their tramp through the falling snow.

The evening's program was interspersed with musical selections by a septette of young men from Caledonia. While their voices may not show that training which would do much to make them still more acceptable, they are yet full and strong and full of sweetness which comes through nature and not through art. Their singing was good, very good, and it pleased the audience as was evidenced by the hearty applause which followed each of their selections. President Conley, or whoever was responsible for their presence in this city Wednesday night, should be thanked for the rich treat afforded.

Thursday's Session.

The second day's session of the Farmers' Institute opened at 9:30 o'clock this morning with President J. B. Conley in the chair.

The opening address was a fine effort by Prof. T. F. Hunt on "The Feeding Value of Stock Foods." Prof. Hunt exhibited several charts which showed the relative nourishing powers of different foods and explained how the food which at one time or at one age might be good for stock might be much improved upon at another time or when the stock had reached another age.

The discussion was opened by Geo. E. Salmon and others present told their experiences. The former contended that he was satisfied to feed his stock corn in the shock and that the results had been the very best.

J. F. Green spoke on "Small Fruits for the Home." He explained that the average farmer did not appreciate the value of small fruits and then went on to explain their value, how to plant them, what kind to plant, how to train them, how to winter them and how to secure from them the best results.

The discussion of this subject was opened by E. G. Stockman and others followed him, after which a recess was taken for dinner.

Afternoon Session.

The last session of the institute commenced at 1 o'clock. After the reports of the various committees the election of officers for the ensuing year followed. J. B. Coniey was re-elected president; Wm. Brocklesby, elected vice-president; E. N. Unsopher, secretary and David Seas, re-elected treasurer. E. G. Stockman, P. W. Hoiverstott and H. E. Millisor were elected as the executive committee with authority to select township vice-presidents.

Resolutions were then passed in favor of the present food and dairy laws, in favor of protecting quail for the next five years and protests against all games of chance on the Fair grounds during fairs.

Prof. Hunt's talk on "A Good Dairy Cow," and "Recent School Legislation. What More Is Needed?" by J. F. Green, with discussion opened by W. T. Ozens closed the day's program and the thirteenth annual meeting of the Marion County Farmers' Institute was over.

EOPHONE TRIALS.

An Invention to Concentrate Sound In a Fog.

The recent delays in the arrival of ocean steamers at the port of New York and the detention of vessels on the great lakes from fog will be obviated when the eophone, as its discoverer names it, has been brought into general use. The discoverer, or inventor, is Frank De la Torre of Baltimore.

Professor Henry of the Smithsonian institution and Admiral Walker 20 years ago investigated, on behalf of the United States government, the nature and cause of these curious areas, in which fog signals cannot be heard. They agreed that the distance of the signal bell or whistle from the ship was not a factor. The direction of the wind and the density of the atmosphere, especially the varying density of alternating strata of air or fog, were found to exercise the most positive influences. De la Torre was already making his experiments at that time.

I asked Admiral Walker about the eophone and its value to commerce. "It is a device," said he, "which concentrates and intensifies sound so that it can be heard at a greater distance than with the naked ear and its source located more quickly and exactly. It gathers sounds into a sort of funnel and brings it directly to the ears. If it is what the inventor claims it to be, it will save not only a vast amount of valuable time to steamers and sailing ships, but much property and many lives as well."

The United States lighthouse board is making exhaustive tests of eophones—one De la Torre's and another designed by Major Heap, U. S. N., intended to be an improvement on the first.

EFFICACY OF PRAYER.

It Saved a Ship When Oil Upon the Waters Was of No Avail.

A most remarkable story of saving an ocean steamer by prayer was given out when the Northern Pacific steamer Tacoma arrived from China and Japan the other day. When 1,000 miles from Yokohama and near midocean, a "twister" struck the vessel and all but wrecked it. The waves dashed over her, carrying away all the upper decks.

All control of the steamer was lost, and she went drifting about at the mercy of the big waves. Then she listed and the officers, losing hope, congregated in the surgeon's cabin and united in prayer. Several hundred gallons of oil had been cast upon the angry sea, but to no avail.

Soon after the officers joined in prayer the storm subsided, the vessel righted itself and the officers cleared away the wreckage on deck and brought the steamer safely into port. No one was lost, and in the official chronicle of the battle with the cyclone prepared by Second Officer Smith, under direction of Captain Crawford, divine Providence is freely credited with saving the steamer and all on board.

LIVE TAPEWORM IN AN EGG.

It Is Two Inches Long and Was Discovered In Mount Vernon.

Dr. John Knapp of Mount Vernon, N. Y., has in his possession a tapeworm 2 inches long that was found in a hen's egg by Mrs. Benjamin Sedgwick.

Dr. Knapp insists that it is a genuine tapeworm. He says the finding of such an organism in an egg is unprecedented, and that it will suggest to bacteriologists a new field for investigation.

Mrs. Sedgwick was breaking eggs into a dish, when she noticed in the albumen something that moved. She was at first too much startled to look into the dish a second time. Mrs. Sedgwick finally determined to have the phenomenon investigated, and carried the broken eggs to Dr. Knapp. Dr. Knapp at once said that the live object was beyond doubt a tapeworm.

Dr. Knapp says he will report the matter to prominent bacteriologists.

Very Odd.

How odd a thing is love!

Or shall we call it by some other name?

It matters little, for by any other name the result would be the same.

Here is Mrs. Frank Higginson, a Boston heavy; well and well known in New York society, running away with a Harvard student, although she is full 40 years of age and the mother of four children.

By Jove, but this thing we call love is an awfully freakish thing!

Moreover, it seems that a woman is never safe from it, no matter what her age or station or previous condition of servitude.—New York Recorder.

The New Supreme Court Justice.

Many complimentary remarks relative to Judge Peckham have been made by persons acquainted with the family of the distinguished jurist. His father and stepmother, it will be remembered, perished on the ill fated steamer Ville de Havre in the Atlantic years ago. As illustrative of the high courage of the elder Peckham, which his sons are declared to have inherited, the story is told that when the ship was known to be sinking, and all hope had departed, Judge Peckham clasped his wife in his arms and said, "My dear, if we must die, let us die bravely."—New York Times.

Ingenious Railway Invention.

J. L. Allen, a telegraph operator at Loretto, Ky., has invented a railroad clock that is a marvel of ingenuity. It registers each train as it passes and the time at which it passes, and an accompanying device gives warning to incoming trains if another train has passed the station within 15 minutes.

The Hospitable Dardanelles.

This talk about the Dardanelles revives recollections of "The Almighty Dollar." Mrs. Gilfery, returned from Europe, was asked if she had seen the Dardanelles. "Oh, yes," was the reply, "we dined with 'em."—St. Louis Republic.

MINNIE HAS RETIRED

SHE HAS BEEN ARRESTED 1,000 TIMES AND HAS SAVED $100,000.

The Cleverest Female Thief In America Has Gone "Out of Business"—Gave a Farewell Banquet—Something of Her Remarkable Career.

Minnie May, well known to the police of Chicago and other cities as a clever and bold thief, has made enough money at her nefarious calling to settle down for life. She has retired, as it were, and with her husband, Danny Nugent, has gone to Dayton, O., where she owns a comfortable home.

The occasion of Minnie's departure from Chicago will be remembered for years to come by her companions. A few nights ago she gave a farewell banquet, at which all the leading lights of her set were present. The next day she and Danny, who, by the way, is one of the "best" diamond thieves in the country, left for their Ohio home. There they intend to spend the remainder of their lives in ease and luxury.

It is estimated that in the last ten years Minnie May has stolen to the value of upward of $160,000. Some policemen put the amount as high as $200,000. At any rate, she has laid enough by to keep her and Danny without further ado as long as they live.

Minnie May is still a young woman. She is not more than 28 years old. The last ten years she has lived in Chicago, and during that time she has been arrested more than 1,000 times for robbery and disorderly conduct. She has been called "the wickedest woman in the world," but there is often doubt expressed as to the applicability of this term.

Minnie May was born on a farm near Milwaukee. Her mother still lives on the old homestead. When Minnie was about 18 years old and an innocent but bright and energetic country girl, she was engaged to be married, but the prospective husband disappeared two weeks before the day set for the wedding. The proud spirited girl felt disgraced in the eyes of her family and friends, so she left home suddenly and went to Chicago. She quickly drifted into the life of crime in which her shrewdness and in many ways her common sense caused her to be successful. Quickly her cleverness in getting a victim's money attracted the attention of the Central station detectives.

The police were at first loath to believe that the innocent looking, rosy cheeked girl from Wisconsin could do the deeds accredited to her. Nearly every night some man, usually a stranger in the city, would report to the police that he had stopped to talk to a young woman on the street, and after leaving her discover that he had been robbed. Sometimes it would be a watch that was taken, and again it was a diamond stud or a fat pocketbook.

Minnie was arrested before she had been "in the business a month," to use her own expression. Her photograph was taken and put in the rogues' gallery. The detectives at the Central station were told to arrest her every time they saw her on the street, whether she was with a victim or not. In this way the police hoped to drive her from the city.

But she remained just the same, dodging the police whenever she could, and in spite of the fact that she has been locked at the Harrison Street station something like 1,000 times she has succeeded in stealing a fortune. For years she was a well known figure in the neighborhood of the Grand Pacific hotel. She usually selected strangers in town as her victims. And there was a reason for this. If a stranger lost a diamond or his wallet, it would usually be a financial loss for him to try to stay to prosecute the case. Even if the victim did succeed in having her indicted Minnie would have the case continued from term to term and in that way tire the prosecutor until, disgusted, he would give up the attempt to get her punished.

One secret of Minnie May's remarkable success, as given by herself many times in conversation, was that she did not dissipate. She seldom drank anything and was never known to be under the influence of liquor. But many a time after a good night's work she would enter a saloon and buy drinks for the loungers until everybody was glorious. Minnie would then call a cab and go to her home on the West Side. The next night she would be down town again looking for victims in the neighborhood of Clark, Adams, Jackson and La Salle streets.

Minnie's diamonds and wardrobe were the best that money could buy. Her earrings were said to be worth $1,500, and she had diamond rings galore, enormous in weight and value. She had an assortment of sealskin coats and muffs and wraps, as well as handsome gowns, and one who did not know her might think she belonged to a wealthy family. Minnie May's face is irregular in outline and far from comely, but she has teeth of exceptional attractiveness, and her smile transforms her face into one far from unattractive.

Captain Horace Elliott, chief of detectives, said, when he heard of Minnie's departure from Chicago, that he felt like dancing a jig. "She's the cleverest woman thief in the United States," said the veteran detective, "and I'm glad she's gone from Chicago. She has been a nightmare to the police of this town for ten years."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Dyche Thinks He Can Reach the North Pole

Professor Dyche of the Kansas university said the other day that he had practically decided to make an attempt on the north pole, having received an offer of assistance, but he declines to name the source of the offer. He says that, given plenty to eat, he will get to the north pole as easily as he got within 500 miles of it. His present plan is to go north along the west coast of Greenland and then make a dash for the pole by sledge or boat.

NOTHING TO DIG BUT GOLD.

Wonderful Discoveries of the Yellow Ore Near Salt Lake City.

Recent discoveries of vast goldfields at Mercur, about 65 miles south of Salt Lake City, which give every indication of making that place one of the largest and richest gold mining camps in the world, have created intense excitement. For about two years only one property has been operated, and that by the Mercur Gold Mining and Milling company, and in that period it has paid dividends of over $600,000. It now appears that the valley for many miles in every direction contains ore equally as rich or richer than the Mercur company's property.

Within a short period a district of seven miles by three miles has been almost entirely taken up, and fully 1,000 miners and prospecters are at work. Three new mills have been started up and are now operating even more profitably than the original one. New discoveries are being made daily, and there is great excitement. The extent of the surface in which the ore is found appears to be practically unlimited, and the stock of numerous companies which have recently incorporated is eagerly sought for at from 50 cents to $2 a share. Captain Delamar, the multimillionaire, recently obtained an option to purchase the properties of the Mercur company for $1,500,000. The option runs until Jan. 6, and there is scarcely a doubt he will take it up.—New York Tribune.

GIVES UP THE PULPIT.

Instead of Serving the Living He Will Bury the Dead.

Following close upon the action of the Rev. Julius Feicke, who gave up preaching to enter the saloon business because the pulpit did not afford him a living, comes another New Jersey clergyman who, rather than starve, has abandoned the ministry for business.

The change this time is made by the Rev. W. R. Clark, pastor of the First Congregational church of Guttenberg, and he has gone into the undertaking business.

The church is a small one and composed of members who are not wealthy. It does not pay a regular salary, but when the Rev. Mr. Clark accepted the pastorate he says he was promised that he should not want for anything. The donations and subscriptions upon which the trustees depended to make good their promises were not forthcoming, and Mr. Clark soon found himself face to face with the problem which drove Mr. Feicke out of the ministry.

He has tendered his resignation in a letter, in which he said that during the six months he had acted as pastor of the church he had received just $28.50. This was hard enough to bear, but when certain members of the congregation began to slander him it was more than he could stand.—New York Herald.

DRAW POKER AS A CURE.

Dr. Hutchinson Encourages His Maniacs to Play the Game.

Draw poker as a cure for insanity is being tried with great success at the Western Pennsylvania Insane asylum at Dixmont. Dr. Henry A. Hutchinson, the superintendent, speaking recently of the 700 inmates under his charge, said:

"We have some famous poker games there. I must confess that I was afraid to permit its being played at first, fearing the effect on some of the patients. But instead of being injurious the game has turned out to be a perfect godsend to us.

"It is the very thing we want, and I am satisfied the end justifies the means. It seems to have a quieting effect on the most boisterous patients, who play with the skill of a Mississippi river planter.

"One is surprised at their cunning and coolness. They use chips, but do not bet millions of dollars on their hands, as one would imagine. As a general rule the bets are small."—New York World.

An Athletic Clerk of the House.

Major Alexander McDowell, the new clerk of the house of representatives, has been in turn printer, editor and soldier and is now a successful banker in Sharon, Pa. Notwithstanding his many business cares, Major McDowell is an enthusiastic student of music and possesses a tenor voice of rare power and sweetness. In his banking house in Sharon he has a private room, where he has been accustomed every day for years to hold a noonday service of song with a few of his friends and neighbors, their favorite selections being Watts' hymns. The major is also an enthusiastic tennis player and now and then plays quarter back with the local football team.

Church Organ on a Rampage.

The grand organ in St. Paul's Protestant church in Rahway, N. J., brought the services to an abrupt close Sunday morning. The choir had begun to sing the gloria, when something happened to the organ, and every pipe began to sound. It was several minutes before the supply air could be shut off and the noise ceased. The pastor, the Rev. R. P. Cobb, attempted to dismiss the congregation during the noise, but his words could not be heard, and the people left the church to save their eardrums.

How I Love Thee.

How do I love thee? A tiny drop
Of rain splashed down on the mountain top
One April day. Then it joined two more,
And they trickled over the tufted floor,
Gathering strength as they raced down hill,
When, lo! from their union there sprang a rill
That endeared quick to the musical breeze
That played with the leaves of the lofty trees.
And then a swift wandering way it took
The rill grew strong and became a brook
And the brook danced on, and the sunbeams bright
Made sport as they played in its mellow light,
While the dimpling pebbles were filled with glee
And nudged each other incessantly.
But the hastening stream led them all gently
And flowed down, down 'neath the changing sky
And grew to a river broad and deep,
With a stately flow and a majestic sweep
And the stream ... down, ...
... now the ... flowed
... to the ... and the ... less ...
... for thee.

One Minute Cough cure is rightly named. It affords instant relief from suffering when afflicted with a severe cough or cold. It acts on the throat, bronchial tubes and lungs and never fails to give immediate relief.

What One Boy Knew.

The teacher of the Sunday school class was telling the little boys about temptation and showing how it sometimes came in the most attractive guise. She used as an illustration the paw of a cat.

"Now," said she, "you have all seen the paw of a cat. It is as soft as velvet isn't it?"

"Yesem," from the class.

"And you have seen the paw of a dog?"

"Yesem."

"Well, although the cat's paw seems like velvet, there is nevertheless concealed in it something that hurts. What is it?"

No answer.

"The dog bites," said the teacher, "when he is in anger, but what does the cat do?"

"Scratches," replied a boy.

"Correct," said the teacher, nodding her head approvingly. "Now, what has the cat got that the dog hasn't?"

"Whiskers!" said a boy on the back seat. And the titter that ran around the class brought the lesson to an end.—Boston Courier.

The wife of Mr. D. Robinson, a prominent lumberman of Hartwick, N. Y., was sick with rheumatism for five months. Conductor Changed His Mind.

A few evenings since a conductor was asked to relate a few of his funny experiences to a Herald man.

"There are so many I cannot recall them. It's like singing—you may know a lot of songs, but when you are asked to sing, you cannot remember any.

"By the way," he continued, "here's something funny. See that young lady in there? She asked me to let her off at Boylston street, and here I've brought her clear up to the Tremont House."

"I don't see anything remarkably funny about that," remarked The Herald man.

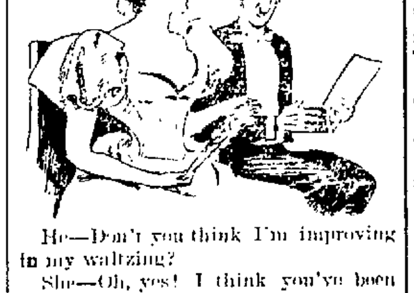

The conductor changed his mind also when the young lady got at him.—Boston Herald.

LEAVES ITS MARK

—every one of the painful irregularities and weaknesses that prey upon women. They fade the face, waste the figure, ruin the temper, wither you up, make you old before your time.

Get well: That's the way to look well. Cure the disorders and ailments that beset you, with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength. It's a powerful general, as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, imparting vigor and strength to the entire system.

MRS. ANNA ULRICH, of Elm Creek, Buffalo Co., Neb., writes, "I enjoy good health thanks to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I was under doctors' care for two years with womb disease, and gradually wasting in strength all the time. I was so weak that I could sit up in bed only a few moments for two years. I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery' and by the time I had taken one half dozen bottles I was up and going wherever I pleased, and have had good health and been very strong ever since—that was two years and a half ago."

Enjoyment of Condemnation.

Some people dislike journalistic condemnation of themselves or their works, others are indifferent to it, and yet others enjoy it. We belong to this last class. Of course if the mark is hit, if shaft after shaft goes in the clout, every one enjoys the game. Dexterity is admirable even when malevolent. But mere malevolence itself, clumsy, uncouth and pretentious malevolence, interests us. Every human passion has a stimulating effect. Much, too, might be written in defense of hatred. It stirs the stagnant waters of life, it is the complement and correlative of love. The deepest shadows go with the highest lights. And people incapable of being what Johnson called "good haters" may yet, in their degree, dislike one and shy snowballs at one from behind, and so add interest to life.

For this reason we mention the latest Yellow Book, and for this reason alone. There is a contributor in it, who signs himself a "Yellow Dwarf," who is as peevish, malicious and sickly as any dwarf of romance. He dislikes The Saturday Review and its present editor, and he has had particular good reason to dislike them. Did not The Saturday Review poke fun at "Gray Roses?" The "Yellow Dwarf" is Mr. Henry Harland. The jargon he writes, a sort of Frenchified English that shows ignorance of both languages, is as characteristic of him as the particolored hose was of Malvolio. We have had Mr. Harland's praise in the past, over his signature. We now have his blame from behind a mask. We prefer the blame, and Mr. Harland need not conceal his identity.—Saturday Review.

Mother Gray's Sweet Worm Powders were successfully used in treating children's complaints by Mother Gray, for years a nurse in the Children's Home at New York. They will certainly remove all kinds of worms, and when a child is feverish, with bad stomach and irregular bowels, they always cure Pleasant and harmless as milk. Mothers should give Mother Gray's Sweet Worm Powders to their children occasionally through the year. They prevent worms forming.

Too Mean.

"Why did you leave Arkansas?" asked the curious boy of the man who had tramped across the continent.

"Why? Because the people of Arkansas are too stingy for a decent man to live among."

"That so?"

"Well, I should say it was so. Why, when I was down there, I was ketched taking a chicken. The men got around me, and some one said that as it would cost something for attorney's fees and so forth to try me they'd better save expenses by lynching me. I didn't mind that so much. That's a custom of the country down there, and we allus expect it. But when they began calling for a rope, and it was discovered that no one had one, instead of going off and buying one, what do you suppose they proposed to do?"

"What did they propose to do?"

"They proposed to take off my breeches, being the only clothes that I had that was strong enough to hold my weight, and hang me with them. Just think what an indecency that would have been! It was a little more'n I could stand, and I says to 'em: 'Gentlemen,' says I, 'this country is too mean a one for me to stay in. If you let me free, I'll quit the state and never come back.'"

"So they let you go?"

"They did. Said that would save all expense, just the same."—Buffalo Express.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars; free.

Light on a Dark Mystery.

There is an organization in Boston known as the Society of Psychical Research. The other evening, at one of the meetings, a certain person, said to possess remarkable occult powers, volunteered to give an exhibition, which offer was gladly accepted by the society. The "professor" was a woman, slightly built, with pallid cheeks and dark raven hair. One of the members, while not particularly skeptical, thought he would try a little experiment on his own account, so, before going to the meeting he provided himself with some pieces of phosphorescent paper that in the dark lit up like a glowworm. This he tore into small pieces, and, just before the lights were extinguished, contrived to place three or four bits of the paper on the "professor's" head. Then he sat down and waited.

When the room was dark, the "professor's" cranium emitted a pale light, visible to every one in the room but the "professor" herself. In a few minutes the phenomena began; but, strange to relate, when a tambourine in one corner of the room began to sound, the illumination was there also, and the moving about of the operator could be easily traced. The suppressed mirth told the "professor" something was wrong, and when the light was turned on and the paper discovered the remarks made were far from spiritual. There were no more manifestations that night.—Boston Post.

Thought He Saw the Joke.

They were talking of phonographs.

"I heard an amusing story about an old farmer the other day," said the commercial traveler.

"Interest always attaches to the doings of the agricultural classes," commented the Englishman, hitching up his chair with a look of interest.

"He had just driven into town with his mules to sell a load of pumpkins, and he stopped in front of the phonograph store.

"'What air them follows doin in there with spouts in their ears?' he asked.

"'Those are talking machines,' answered a man in the doorway.

"The farmer was a little incredulous, but he finally left his mules and went into the store. The tubes were placed in his ears, he dropped the nickel in the slot and a brass band began to play.

"'Whoa there!' shouted the rustic, darting out of the store. 'Them mules o' mine won't stand no brass band.'"

At first the Englishman looked anxious, as if he expected to hear the rest of the story. Then suddenly he burst out laughing.

"Great joke on the mules, eh?" he shouted.—Chicago Record.

Hayward. Now for Holmes and Durrant.

Ambassador Bayard will hardly be impeached, but still it would seem proper to have America officially represented in foreign lands by Americans.

There is talk among certain congressmen of investigating Secretary Morton, to know the reason why they cannot have seeds for distribution. To the congressman who has nothing to offer his constituents but garden seeds Mr. Morton's ruling is very severe.

It is noted that all the presidential candidates are pleased with the selection of St. Louis as the convention city. But then it would have been the same with any other city. Candidates would not be so foolish as to show a preference for other than the city named.

The arguments for annual sessions of the legislature must come from other sources than Columbus before the people of Ohio will change sentiment on the subject. It is all right for hotel-keepers and boarding house people to look after their interests and endeavor to have the legislators with them as long as possible, but Republicans have committed themselves in favor of biennial sessions and that ought to settle it until there is an extraordinary demand for a change, which does not appear at the present time.

A message from Columbus announces the death of Allen G. Thurman, at his home in the capital city at 1 o'clock today. Regretable as it is, the news is not shocking, because in Ohio Mr. Thurman's feebleness of health was well known.

With Allen G Thurman an admirable and most notable figure is removed from the ranks of statesmen The noble "Old Roman" was an honor to his party, to the state and the nation. Thurman came to the front when statesmen were given preferment according to their worth, and he was not only honored on the bench and as a member of the U. S. senate, but was the candidate of his party for the vice presidency in 1888.

Of late years he has lived a retired life, surrounded by his family, respected to the highest degree, awaiting calmly the end of a truly great career.

The U. S. Gov't Reports show Royal Baking Powder superior to all others.

BAYARD'S BLUNDER

The congressional inquiry into Ambassador Bayard's speech at Boston, England, last August, is useful to show Mr. Bayard what his fellow citizens think of him, but it will hardly take so serious a turn as impeachment proceedings implies. Bayard, once regarded as ranking in the very front of American statesmen, couldn't stand among the royal nabobs without losing his good common sense, and he not only placed partisanship above patriotism, but so far forgot himself as to sneer at the people whose favor made him a public man of lit distinction to go to the court of St. James. Bayard not only bought upon himself the contempt of his fellow citizens but he forfeited the respect of the better minds of England. The London Times, an eminent English authority, says "no British diplomat would have uttered such a speech." True. No British diplomat allows any sentiment to rise above loyalty, no Britisher ever goes back on his own people.

Mr. Bayard's first offensive speech contained these words:

"The president stood in the midst of a strong, self-confident and oftentimes violent people, men who sought a real man to govern the people of the United States." * * * * *

Last month he went to greater extremes in showing his partisanship. He said:

"In my country I have witnessed the insatiable growth of a form of socialism styled protection, which has done more to corrupt public life, to banish men of independent mind from public councils, to lower the tone of national representation than any other single cause. Protection, now controlling the sovereign power of taxation, has been perverted from its proper function of creating revenue to support the government into an engine of selfish profit, allied with combinations called trusts. It thus has sapped the popular conscience by giving corrupting largess to special classes, and it throws legislation into the political market where jobbers and chafferers take the place of statesmen."

These words hardly deserve impeachment. That would be developing a partisanship as bad as Bayard has shown. But it is gratifying to see his indiscretion and lack of patriotism publicly discussed. Mr. Bayard deserves to know how his countrymen look upon him. If he could only lead his party in the next campaign, as Mr Crisp suggested being possible, the people could speak effectively.

We have no fault to find with partisanship. A pronounced Democrat commands the respect of the most vigorous Republican always, but when an American ambassador goes to a foreign court he should be an American, whether he is a Republican or Democrat at home.

FOR FUTURE DEBSES.

Bill to Be Presented to Congress by the American Federation of Labor.

The American Federation of Labor has made public the text of the bill to restrict the jurisdiction of courts of the United States in proceedings of contempt which it will present to congress. The bill is the outgrowth of what organized labor calls the "persecution" of Eugene V. Debs and the other labor leaders who were engaged in the great railroad strike last year. The bill is

"Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled. That the courts of the United States, sitting as courts of equity, shall not have jurisdiction to punish for contempt any person charged with the violation of any order or decree of courts whose acts in the premises constitute, arise out of, or are connected with the commission of any offense indictable under the law of the United States or of the state in which the offensive act is committed, but in every such case the offense against the court shall be deemed merged in the greater offense against the state or the United States, as the case may be."

THAT TRUNK MYSTERY.

Martin Reynolds Writes the American Express Company About It.

Some time since the STAR made mention of a trunk expressed here through the American Express company from Somerset, Ky., early in the spring, and that fears were entertained that the shipper, Hiram Reynolds, had been killed.

Tuesday a letter was received by Agent Wilson which bears upon the subject. The letter reads as follows:

STRUNKS, KY., Dec. 7, '95.

EXPRESS AGENT, MARION, O.:

DEAR SIR: I saw an advertisement in the Cincinnati Post of Dec. 5 that you have a trunk at your place expressed from Somerset, Ky., to Hiram Reynolds, Marion, Ohio, about the 20th of March, 1895, and that the trunk is not called for by the owner.

I am afraid that he has been murdered as I have not been able to locate him since he went away last spring I knew that he went north but did not know to what point he was going. Hold the trunk a few days and if I cannot find him I will pay expressage and have trunk sent to me. Any information will be gladly received.

Respectfully yours,
MARTIN REYNOLDS.

A FAREWELL DINNER

Given by Mrs. G. W. McMurray to Miss Jo Harshberger.

At the pretty McMurray home on Gospel Hill, was given a charming 6 o'clock dinner, Wednesday evening, by Mrs. G. W. McMurray, in honor of Miss Jo Harshberger, who is soon to say farewell to Marion to become the bride of one of Bucyrus' sterling young men. The dinner was perfect in all details, the decorations being especially handsome. The company was composed of Miss Harshberger's intimate personal and school friends, and just before the last dinner course was served, the hostess called upon Miss Katharine Turney to express the regrets of companions over losing their charming associate. Miss Turney spoke happily, and Miss Harshberger cleverly responded, speaking her appreciation of home friendships and announcing the latch-string would always be out at Bucyrus.

The company, beside the hostess and guest of honor, was composed of Mrs. Frank Keiler, Mrs. Will Wiant, Miss Anna Cheney, Miss Wright, Miss Carrie Linsley, Miss Walters, Miss Fairfield, Miss Schultz, Miss Nettie Quigley, Miss Katharine Turney, Miss Pearl Berry, Miss Mame Christian.

The funeral of Mrs. Beerbower occurred from the house at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. J. L. Hillman officiating.

Dr. O. W. Weeks has received an invitation to attend the 29th annual banquet of the National G. A. R., to be held at Louisville, Ky., on December 19th.

The Mask and Wig club met at the rooms of Miss Cummin Wednesday night, and elected A. F. McNeal secretary and treasurer to succeed W. G. Neff, resigned.

Beer from the Marion Brewing and Bottling company will be put on the market some time in February. The company now has out calendars and advertising matter for the sale of the first brew.

Herman Schweinfurth met with an accident at the Steam Shovel works this forenoon which will lay him up for a week or two. A bottom of a moulding flask fell and struck his right foot, severely mashing it.

The funeral of William Harruff occurred at the Salem church, in Richland township, this forenoon. Harruff was an inmate of the Columbus insane asylum for five years, and died at that institution Tuesday. He was about twenty-five years of age.

Mrs. Cook, department president of the Ladies of the G. A. R. and Mrs. O. W. Weeks, department vice president of the Ladies of the G. A. R., visited the circles at Bucyrus Tuesday night. Mrs. Cook will visit the local circle on her return.

Cooper Post, G. A. R., will hold a public installation of officers on the first Monday in January, and at that time have invited the Ladies of the G. A. R. and the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps to install their officers at the same time.

The remains of Mrs. Alice Gentry, who died at her home in Shelbyville, Ind., will be brought here this evening and taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hacker, on Silver street. The funeral will occur at the Hacker home tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. Skidmore.

The Bucyrus Forum of Wednesday says: "Mrs. Dr. O. W. Weeks, of Marion, is in the city, the guest of Samuel Neff and family. Mrs. Weeks is looking up her family record with a view to applying for membership in the Daughters of the Revolution, and hopes to secure information from Mrs. Dr. Johnston, to whom she is distanty related."

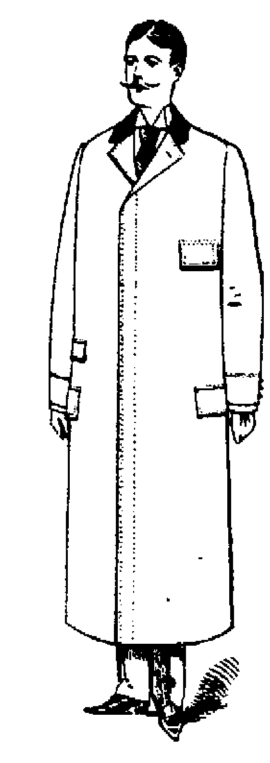

A local physician remarked to the STAR Wednesday afternoon that he believed that there were more sick people in this city at present than there had been for years. He said that there were not so many serious cases, but simple maladies. Hard colds, attacks of various sorts of fever and such mild diseases are the kind he reports. He states that diphtheria is abating, and but few new cases are developing. The cold weather has caused many to become sick from severe colds.

The Street Railway company had much trouble Wednesday night in running its cars on schedule time owing to the snow on the rails. About 9:45 o'clock car No. 2 started down from the hill and made headway as far north as the E. Durfee residence. At that point the grade became too heavy and after a half hour spent in patient efforts to make the slight declivity car No. 1 was sent for and being coupled on the two went on south and then coming back came on up town without trouble.

THE LECTURE

By S. S. Yenovkian at the Epworth M. E. Church Wednesday Night.

A good sized audience was present at the Epworth M. E. church Wednesday night to hear a lecture by S. S. Yenovkian, an Armenian.

Mr. Yenovkian, while yet his talk gives evidence of the fact that he is not native born, is a most interesting and entertaining speaker and greatly pleased those present at the Epworth church Wednesddy night.

In his lecture he told of the horrors which have been committed in his native land, of the pillage, rapine and murder done by the Turks; told of the outrages that have been perpetrated against his people and how hundreds and thousands of them have been ruthlessly murdered.

While the public press has done much to enlighten our people on this subject, yet, coming from one of the people against whom these outrages have been done, the story is the more effective and thrilling and brings it, as it were, so much nearer home.

It is impossible to have heard the lecture of Mr. Yenovkian and not pity his stricken people and condemn, most unmistakably, the power which to them has done so great a wrong.

Mr. J.T. Ashley Says His Improved Homoeopathic Remedies Are Worth More Than the Whole Medical Fraternity.

John T Ashley, Petersburg, Va., says: "An aged friend of mine had rheumatism for many years and could get to his place of business only by the aid of a cane. He had tried various remedies and numerous doctors without benefit. He finally bought a bottle of MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE. Three days afterward I saw him without his cane and inquired how he came to be walking without his crutch. His answer was to take out the half bottle of MUNYON'S RHEUMATISM CURE still remaining, with the remark that he "would not give the rest of these pellets for the whole medical faculty." As for my own case, I suffered for years with a torpid liver. Calomel and other strong drugs only gave relief for a few days. One bottle of MUNYON'S LIVER CURE acted like magic. I consider myself entirely free from my old malarial trouble, feel spry and active, with no pains in the back, as formerly, and above all, I am cured of awful sore boils, which had tormented me four years as the result of the sluggish liver.

BOWSER ON MEMORY.

HE EXPLAINS THE NEW SYSTEM IN A PRACTICAL WAY.

Mrs. Bowser Thinks It Is All Nonsense, and After He Has Gone Back Into History She Brings Him to Task With Regard to Some Recent Slips.

"What have you there?" asked Mrs. Bowser as Mr Bowser pulled a small book from his pocket and sat down to his after dinner cigar.

"This? It's a book Green lent me over at the office. It's called, 'How to Cultivate Memory.' It says in the preface, and it says truly, that the past years of most people are a blank wall. How far back can you remember, Mrs. Bowser?"

"To when I was 4 or 5 years of age."

"Give me some incident that happened when you were 4 years old."

"I—I fell down stairs and broke my arm."

"Very well. How came you to fall down stairs?"

"I don't know."

"How many steps in those stairs?"

"I never counted them."

"Who picked you up at the bottom of the stairs?"

"I think it was mother."

"How long before your arm was well?"

"Why, how can I tell all those things, Mr Bowser?"

"That's it—that's the very idea!" he chuckled. "When you were about 4 years old, something like a tragedy happened—you were romping in childish sport when you suddenly pitched headlong down stairs. You broke your arm instead of your neck. A doctor was sent for—you were laid up for long weeks—you suffered great pain—and yet you practically remember nothing about it! I suspected just such a state of affairs. And it was on your account more than my own that I borrowed this book."

"But why should I remember an incident that occurred when I was only 4 years old?" she protested.

"Why should you? Suppose there was $1,000,000 at stake. Suppose you had witnessed a murder!"

"But there was nothing of the kind."

"How do you know? You can't remember. What you want to do is to carefully peruse the pages of this book for about two hours. I presume your childhood is a perfect blank to you. Aye! I doubt if you can remember anything of moment between the ages of 12 and 18. In other words, half of your life is a sort of dream."

"But yours isn't!" retorted Mrs. Bowser with considerable pepper in her voice.

"Certainly not. I can distinctly remember things that occurred when I was only a year old. For instance, I swallowed a thimble on my first birthday, and I recall how alarmed mother was. When 13 months old, they found me with father's razor in my hand."

"Had you shaved yourself?"

"There you go! Every time I try to pound some sense into your head you get mad about it! Why don't you take this book and read up and benefit by it?"

"Because it's all nonsense!"

"It is, eh? Of course, you'd say that. Let me tell you something, Mrs. Bowser. Before I got hold of this book I couldn't remember events of five years ago. Now I can recall the minutest details of my daily life back to the first year. I can even remember every time I stubbed my toe or had a sore heel as a boy. It has just come to me that on the day I was 16 months old I was bitten on the thumb by a cat. It was a black and white cat, and she was blind in the left eye. Mother found my thumb all bloody, but I didn't utter a single cry. On the day I was 5 years old I fell into the cistern. On my eleventh birthday I got choked on a fish bone. Everything stands out as clear as print."

"You were born on the 16th day of June, 1842," said Mrs. Browser.

"I was."

"What particular thing happened on the 12th day of July, 1843?"

"What particular thing? Give me just a minute. Let's see! Ah! I have it! At 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the 12th of July, 1843, I being then about 13 months old, my uncle Reuben was sunstruck in the harvest field and died. And they would not let me see the body, for fear it would shock me."

"How thoughtful of them!" said Mrs Bowser.

"That's you to a dot!" he shouted as he rose up and began to walk about. "Because you are so cabbage headed that you can't see through this thing you are making fun of me! All right, however. If you want to go slamming around like an old horse, living only today, I shan't object. I suppose you carry a card round with you so as not to forget your own name."

"Mr. Bowser," said Mrs. Bowser, after a moment's silence, "you say you can remember everything connected with the past?"

"I can."

"A week ago you brought home some hooks to put up in the kitchen for the cook. Where did you leave the package?"

"Where— Where? Why, I—I—"

"Some 10 or 12 days ago you [illegible] counted all over the house for the [illegible] to oil the springs of a [illegible]. Where did you leave the can?"

He looked at her without replying.

"Five or six days ago you got the saw down to [illegible]. Where [illegible]" [illegible] How many [illegible] are there? We [illegible] last. You had Mr. D[illegible] night within a month to-day [illegible] with you. What night was it?"

[illegible]

"Woman, are you talking to me?" demanded Mr. Bowser.

"Of course I am! You have [illegible] about George Washington. How old was he when he died? On what date did you order your last shirts? What night last month did we go to the theater? You fell off a street car and hurt your back awhile ago. Please give me the exact date? How old is our boy? What is the date of our marriage?"

Mr Bowser had stood over her, waving "How To Cultivate Memory" in the air and flushing red and white by turns. He was caught dead to rights and realized it, and there was only one thing for him to do. He did it. He stiffened up, waved the book more vigorously, and thundered out:

"Woman, I go to the library! If my lawyer calls, send him in and we will arrange to see your lawyer early in the morning! As we can live together no longer we will separate quietly and without scandal, and you can return to your mother!"—M. Quad in Detroit Free Press.

Not a Crime.

It was night. A tall man, with his overcoat buttoned up closely around his neck, walked swiftly down one of the side streets of the great city that led to the river front. The feeble rays from each flickering street lamp threw his shadow on the street as he passed by noiselessly, with both hands to his side, in the act of holding what even the most indifferent observer would have seen to be a somewhat bulky package concealed beneath the folds of his overcoat. Gazing cautiously about him as he approached the wharf, to see that no policeman was in sight, and pulling his slouch hat over his eyes, he walked stealthily to the very edge of the water. Taking the package, a small square shaped one, from under his coat and rapidly tying it to a heavy stone that lay at his feet he threw it far out into the black tide that scurried past. There was a dull splash, and then the same silence as before. The face of the solitary man lighted up with a fiendish smile of satisfaction, and there was a bright and unnatural gleam in his eye as he turned back toward the city.

"There!" he muttered half audibly, throwing his coat collar back and holding up his head with the air of one who has been relieved of a great burden, "my dear wife may miss it; but, praise be to Allah, I won't have to eat any more dishes cooked from the recipes in that scrapbook."—Brooklyn Life.

HIS WAYS WERE SIMPLE.

He Was Glad to Meet a Good Man, but It Didn't Work.

One day as I lounged into Central park at the Seventh avenue entrance an old man sitting on a bench beckoned me to approach. I saw at once that he was a stranger in Gotham, and as I looked upon him I could scent the new mown hay of the country meadow and hear the dinner horn blowing at the kitchen door at high noon.

"My dear young friend," he began as I sat down beside him, "I trust that you are walking in the straight and narrow path of virtue and integrity while surrounded by the temptations of a great city?"

I replied that his trust was well founded, and he continued:

"I have been in New York for a week, and it has made my heart ache to behold the sin and wickedness on every hand. I hope you are proof against the seductive influences of wine and cards and the theater?"

I humbly answered him that I never drank anything stronger than root beer, and not having a deadhead pass I never showed up at the theater. As for cards, I simply knew the ten of diamonds from the ace of spades.

"That is good!" he said as he laid his hand on my shoulder. "May I further trust that you do not attend horse races, dog fights and boxing matches?"

I solemnly assured him that he could trust, and he took my hand in his and feelingly exclaimed:

"I thank heaven that I have found one good and pure hearted man in this terribly wicked city! Had I not met you I should have gone home believing there was no exception. I am an old man, as you see, and I am simple in my ways. The other day I encountered a fellow being in distress and bought this gold watch of him to help him out. It is a bauble I do not wish to carry about or take home. They tell me it is worth more than what I gave, but I would let it go at the same price."

He took from his upper vest pocket a gold watch in a chamois skin cover and held it out to me.

"It's funny how things come about, isn't it?" I asked as I waved the watch away.

"How?"

"Why, I'm in the same line myself and was going to play you for a sucker on a glass diamond pin. Shake! How's it with you? If you are new to the [illegible], I can put you on to these watches [illegible] a dozen. I worked two off last [illegible] at $75 each, but I can do better [illegible] diamond racket. Let's find a [illegible] place and have a long talk!"

[illegible] the man as he rose up [illegible] confiscated me and restored the fake [illegible] to his pocket. "Sir, you are something of a liar and a good deal of a scoundrel, and I don't want anything to do with you! Good day, sir!"

And he turned and walked out of the park and up Fifty ninth street and I looked after him in such sorrow that the policeman on duty at the entrance took it for a case of colic and advised me to put in plenty of Jamaica ginger and not follow it with too much water.—Detroit Free Press.

WINTER WRAPS.

The Mealbag Cloak Again Revived, but Not a Favorite.

The old fashioned sack, which is again revived, does not meet with a great deal of success and is adopted by only a few women who have a passion for the latest novelty, however ugly and unbecoming it may be. These sacks are without form, if not void, hanging straight and seamless from the shoulders, and are without the watteau plait that they had at their last revival, a few years ago, and which added to their bedgown appearance.

The medieval collar again shows itself on out of door garments. It is of various forms—round, square and rippled—but is always high and flaring, framing the face and sheltering the neck. A collar of this sort is only suitable for nice wraps, as it is incongruous with informal costume or in cheap materials.

A new cape is open at the throat and has wide revers. It crosses in front and is fastened at the waist on the left side with a large paste buckle, long ends falling nearly to the hem of the skirt.

Besides the regulation jackets and collars there are numerous classified and unclassified outer garments to be seen now. Long wraps, both close and loose, of rich materials, embroidered, trimmed with jet or passementerie and finished with fur or feathers, are worn by women who can afford them and are fond of these rather cumbersome garments. Louis Seize coats of velvet and Marie Antoinette fichus of fur, crossed on the heart and fastened behind with long ends falling on the skirt, are other variations in the outer wardrobe which are noticeable and picturesque. Evening wraps are sumptuous to the last extreme, all the richest kinds of brocades, velvets, furs and trimmings being employed for them.

The illustration shows an evening cape of turquoise satin. It falls in godets and is lined with gold colored taffeta. A deep embroidering of gold is carried around the edge, and a yoke shaped design in the same sort of embroidery covers the shoulders. The high, flaring collar is bordered with turquoise ostrich feathers. This cape is worn over a gown of white silk, having a striped pattern of pink roses and green leaves. JUDIC CHOLLET.

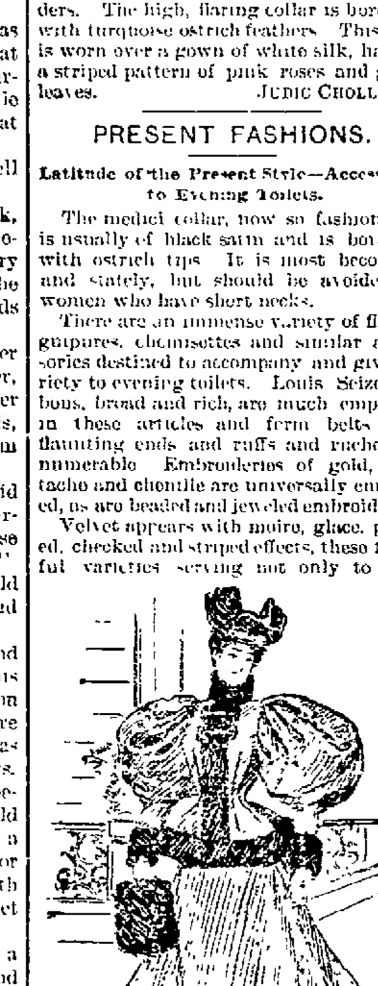

PRESENT FASHIONS.

Latitude of the Present Style—Accessories to Evening Toilets.

The medici collar, now so fashionable, is usually of black satin and is bordered with ostrich tips. It is most becoming and stately, but should be avoided by women who have short necks.

There are an immense variety of fichus, guipures, chemisettes and similar accessories destined to accompany and give variety to evening toilets. Louis Seize ribbons, broad and rich, are much employed in these articles and form belts with flaunting ends and ruffs and ruches innumerable. Embroideries of gold, soutache and chenille are universally employed, as are beaded and jeweled embroideries.

Velvet appears with moire, glace, printed, checked and striped effects, these fanciful varieties serving not only to trim gowns and compose bodices, but as the material for evening wraps, and even being seen in ladies' coats which is certainly not a suitable situation for them.

There are no changes to be noted in the fashionable costume. It remains as it has been—rich in material and trimming, not timid as to color, and expansive in the matter of skirts and sleeves. There is much latitude allowed to individual choice, and, provided the large sleeves and skirt are duly respected, one can dress almost as one pleases and be certain of being in vogue. All styles of wraps and jackets are worn, from the short, straight sack to the long, rich mantle, including the whole gamut between.

Women of moderate circumstances will do well to have two out of door garments—a jacket for general service and a cape, more elaborate in style, for nice occasions when a tailor jacket would not be in keeping with the formal gown and would crush its sleeves and trimming. If she goes out a great deal an evening cape must be added to the list, but it need not be very expensive if the color and trimming are carefully chosen.

A sketch is given of a [illegible] of [illegible] cloth. The gored skirt is edged [illegible] band of astrakhan. The close bodice has a rather long rippled basque, bordered with astrakhan, which continues up the front and around the neck. Passementerie brandebourgs fasten the bodice across the chest. The sleeves, made in a single piece, have astrakhan cuffs. The hat is of green felt, trimmed with satin [illegible]

SELECTIONS

MR MINER STOOD PAT.

The Reason He Did So Never Paralleled In Any Other Game of Poker.

Representative Henry Clay Miner knows a good poker hand when he sees it, but he was almost stricken with apoplexy when he skinned over the hand he dealt himself when he last crossed the ocean on the steamship New York.

In the ancient days, when the theatrical member of congress was just plain "Harry" Miner and when he helped to nourish and sustain struggling political organizations, he spent much time o' nights in learning the mystery and art of the game of draw poker. Indeed, he had a theory that a man who could "sit in" at the Comanche club and escape in the cold, gray dawn with his soul and his watch still in his possession was something of a good player. His experience on various transatlantic liners confirmed this theory. He made no secret of his belief that he was one of the best players of draw that ever flourished.

Mr Miner's ill fortune on board the New York jolted his theory very hard. The leading spirits in the smoking room were a Philadelphia editor, a Philadelphia Biddle, General Manager Weir of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad company, and Mr. Miner. They played poker from shortly after breakfast until it was almost time for the next breakfast. At the beginning of the first game Mr. Miner warned his new friends that he was a holy terror.

They extended many glad hands unto him. They also made his amusement cost him from $5 to $50 a day, which wasn't bad for a 25 cent limit game. The placid Philadelphians rubbed it in by asking him innocent questions about the Bowery, and whether it was true that the Comanche braves really bet their rifles and their blankets on their pat hands.

"The trouble is that these cards are hoodooed," exclaimed Mr. Miner, late in the afternoon of his fourth losing day. "They've all had red backs. Now let's get a pack with green backs for luck." The new pack was brought. Mr. Miner shuffled it a little and dealt. Everybody came in. The age man, Mr Weir, stood pat. Mr. Miner, in a whisper, asked a friend who sat behind him to look over his hand. His friend said the cards were all right.

"I want to ask you whether everything goes," Mr Miner exclaimed to his fellow players. "I've never traveled on the American line before, but I must say they keep the most remarkable cards I ever saw. I've got"—

"Come on! Come on! You're trying to talk us out of our money. Everything goes!" chorused the other players. Mr Miner dealt to every one but Mr. Weir and himself. The others stood one round of bets and dropped out.

"I've got you beaten," cried Mr. Miner, raising his friend a quarter.

"Umph!" snorted the age man showing up two blue chips. They raised each other a dozen times. The western man finally exclaimed:

"I call you, though I've got four queens."

"Not worth a cent!" shouted Mr. Miner, laying down five tens. The others remembered their rash admission that everything went and fell into a trance from which they were roused only by prompt exhibitions of Scotch and potash. They examined the new pack and found that it was shy of the jack of clubs, and that the additional ten spot had been slipped in in its place. Mr. Miner won only $20 by his rare bit of good fortune, but if he were only on good terms with the Comanche braves today they would welcome him to the wigwam as the heap big medicine man of all good poker dealers.—New York Herald.

Knew Barnato In the Old Days.

Cedar Rapids has a citizen, R. A. Peterson, who claims to possess a curiosity—an unpaid bill against Barney Barnato, now the most talked of man in the English speaking world. In 1872 Mr. Peterson and Carl Lutter, now of San Francisco, kept a boarding house at Du Toy Pan, three miles from Kimberley. This was the site of the first find. Peterson conducted the diggings, and Lutter ran the boarding house. About this time Harry Barnato, as he was called, his full name being Harry Barney Barnato, struck the place. He was a sleight of hand performer, barefoot and bareheaded, an importation from the Whitechapel region of London. The boys hired a hall for him, and he gave two or three entertainments, made a stake and began the diamond brokerage business. "Oh, he was a smooth one," said Mr. Petersen. "He could make you think you were baldheaded, with his tricks. One night we had a raffle at our shanty, and Barnato was there. He could throw three sixes or three aces, anything needed to win, and we kicked him out." Kimberley began to boom, and Du Toy Pan took a drop. The diggings failed, and the miners left. Among the departures was H. B. Barnato, who forgot to pay his board bill.—Minneapolis Journal.

Curious Prehistoric Monkeys.

In several places in the Cape Colony and Orange Free State of South Africa caves have been explored which yielded hundreds of mummified remains of a queer species of six fingered monkey. All of the full grown specimens of this remarkable species of quadruman have the tail situated high up on [illegible] from three to five inches [illegible] than that on the modern monkey—and [illegible] distinguishing marks, [illegible] of canine teeth, hands [illegible] etc. Whether the creatures were mummified by human beings, who formerly held them in reverence, or were overtaken by some catastrophe, such as a sudden convulsion of nature, [illegible] which entombed them [illegible] and thus preserved them [illegible] never be known.—St. Louis Republic.

Something New.

The poet mused. In addition, he racked his brain. 'Twas with one of those patent racks, but never mind that.

"If I could only think of a rhyme!" he muttered, with poised pen ready to dash upon the smooth white demirep that glistened helplessly in the candle light.

> Oh I love to see the tiger
> On the Kongo or the Niger.

"No, no!" he broke off hoarsely. "That has been done before. Let me see. Tiger—liger, miger, piger, quiger, riger, siger—ah, I have it!" And the pen dashed like lightning upon its prey, and it was but the work of a moment to perpetrate the following outrage upon society, after which the poet rested, the perspiration streaming from every pore.

He had written

> Oh, I love to see the tiger
> Smoke a cigarette or cigar.

What a Canton Mother Says.

"I have raised a family of six children and have tried all the cures for colic from paregoric to catnip tea, and never found anything so valuable as Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. It expels wind from the stomach at once and gives such quiet and refreshing sleep. I would not be without Dr. Hand's Colic Cure or Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion for four times the cost. Mothers, give them a trial."—Mrs. H. A. Brown, 237 south Cherry St., Canton O.

A Wise Minister.

The potentate was plainly agitated. "My counselor," said he in angry tones to his minister of war, "inform me that all is in readiness to squelch the rebels who have dared to question our authority, and yet I find you delaying the advance. If I thought there were any treachery"—

"Have patience, O brother of the sun and boss of the moon," replied the minister, in the tone of one who was sure of his ground. "We are but waiting for them to get out a set of postage stamps, which we will rush in and seize, and by the sale of them pay the whole expense of the war."

"Verily," said the admiring monarch, "thou hast a head like a tack."—Indianapolis Journal.

When most needed it is not unusual for your family physician to be away from home. Such was the experience of Mr. J. Y. Schenck, editor of the Caddo, Ind Ter, Banner, when his little girl, two years of age, was threatened with a severe attack of croup. He says: "My wife insisted that I go for the doctor, but as our family physician was out of town I purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which relieved her immediately. I will not be without it in the future." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by L. H. Flocken, Druggist.

His Natural Bent.

Fond Father—If that boy of mine has any particular bent, I can't find it.

Professor—What experiments have you made to find out?

"Very thorough ones. I gave him a toy printing press, a steam engine, a box of paints, a chest of tools and a lot of other things carefully selected to find out whether his tastes were literary, mechanical, artistic, commercial or what, and I know no more than I did before."

"What did he do with them?"

"Smashed them all up."

"Ah, I see. He is to be a furniture mover."—New York Weekly.

If suffering with piles, it will interest you to know that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve will cure them. This medicine is a specific for all complaints of this character and if instructions (which are simple) are carried out, a cure will result. We have tested this in numerous cases and always with like results. It never fails.

Sale of Bonds

THE City of Marion, Marion County, Ohio, through its Finance Committee of the Council, duly authorized by ordinance, invites sealed proposals at the office of the City Clerk until 2 p. m. January 6, 1896, for the purchase, with accrued interest at delivery, of Twelve Sewer Bonds of $1000.00 each, amounting in the aggregate to $12,000.00, to be dated January 6th, 1896, and maturing as follows:
Three due March 1, 1903.
Three due September 1, 1903.
Three due March 1, 1906.
Three due September 1, 1906.

That said bonds are issued in pursuance of an ordinance of the Council of the City of Marion, Ohio, passed Dec 2, 1895, entitled "An Ordinance to Provide for Issuing of Bonds of the City of Marion, Ohio, in the Sum of $12,000.00, to be Expended in the Construction of Sewers," and in pursuance of the Laws of the State of Ohio, and are to bear interest at the rate of five per centum, payable semi-annually on the first day of March and September of each year at the Office of the City Treasurer of Marion, Ohio, for which proper interest coupons are to be attached. Bidders will be required to state, in writing and in figures, the gross amount they will pay for bonds bid for besides the accrued interest at date of delivery. Bidders will be required to deposit with each bid an amount of money or a certified check on some bank in the City of Marion, Ohio, in the sum of $300.00 as a guarantee of good faith and that the bid so made will be fulfilled in accordance with the terms thereof, and the requirements of the Laws and Ordinances.

When the bids have been examined and the award made according to law all money or checks deposited as a guarantee shall be returned to the depositor, or held by the City Clerk subject to his call, except that of the successful bidder, which shall be held and considered and accepted as part payment of the bonds so awarded or sold, but should there be any repudiation of the contract or agreement or refusal to accept and pay for the bonds so sold, then in that case the deposit shall be forfeited to the City of Marion, Ohio, and shall become the property of the City for compensation for loss and expenses attending the sale of said bonds and as liquidated damages for repudiation of bid. And no bid will be received if not accompanied with money or check as aforesaid.

The City Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids and to accept any proposal within three days after the opening of bids.

All proposals shall be directed to the City Clerk, Marion, Ohio.

JAMES WILLIAMS,
City Clerk. 9-69

RAILROAD NOTES

The Erie pay car will arrive here on December 19.

There are 807,171 persons in the employ of the railroads of this country against 779,608 July 1, 1894.

Huntington Herald: Pat Ferrel, who has resigned his place in the road-master's office, has gone to Columbus, Ohio, to accept a position in the general store of the C. A. & A. Will Windle is Mr. Ferrel's successor.

Huntington Herald: The locomotive built by engineers on the Erie, which was exhibited at the World's fair and well spoken of, was sold last week by the engineers to the reorganized Erie road. It is a fine, heavy passenger engine.

Bucyrus Telegraph: The rumor in regard to the new time card on the Short Line is that a train will go north in the morning between nine and ten, another train will go north between one and two in the afternoon and another about eight in the evening. Going south an early train is expected to leave Sandusky at four in the morning and reach here about half past five, another southbound train just before noon and another between five and six in the evening. The new card will probably be out Friday.

The eastern roads are still fighting over freight rates from Chicago to the Atlanta seaboard. Some of the roads are claiming, as they have claimed all along, that all the cuts are made for no other reason than to even up percentages before the first of the year. This is stoutly denied by the lines who have no percentages to even up, and meanwhile the reduced rates are in effect and the road making the most of them is getting the lion's share of the traffic. It is probable that the fight will be kept up for the balance of the month.

Cleveland World: Fast runs are all the rage nowadays. The New York Central has the fastest regular train in the world, the Lake Shore has made a phenomenally fast run, the time across the continent has been lowered, the Big Four threatens to smash all records, and indeed about every road in the country has a fast-run record or is bound to have one. But the Erie proposes to eclipse them all in novel and fast runs. Some time ago the road made all arrangements for running a train from New York to Chicago by daylight, but a coal strike prevented it. The officials have no doubt of the success of the undertaking. In fact, they are so confident of it that they propose to do a still more remarkable thing. For that trip they selected the longest day in the year. Now they propose to run a train from New York to Chicago on the shortest day of the year. To do this a train would fairly have to fly over the rails, but the Erie men say the train will have to fly, then, for it must accomplish the feat.

RAISING A NEW ARMY

CARL BROWNE SAID TO HAVE ENLISTED A COMPANY OF MOUNTAINEERS.

Two Hundred Stand of Arms Secured—Coxey's Old Followers Urged to Join the New Movement—Queer Operations in the Virginia Mountains.

A Washington gentleman who has spent a week hunting up in the Blue Ridge, in the vicinity of Front Royal, is authority for a most interesting story in regard to the present whereabouts and operations of Carl Browne, who became conspicuous as the aid and son-in-law of Coxey, the labor agitator. After marrying Coxey's daughter and making his home for several weeks in Washington, where his huge figure, clad in deerskin garments, became a familiar street sight, Browne betook himself to Virginia, and, it is said, became the bosom comrade and confidant of Captain O. C. Cullen. On the mountain farm where Cullen built his hotel are several old abandoned log houses, nearly fallen to the ground. In one of these Browne has made his home, and, according to the Washington sportsman, is snugly en-scoured there, with very comfortable surroundings. Pursuing his aptitude for eccentric and sensational pamphleteering, Browne has spotted the mountain roadsides and woodlands with his peculiar handbills, exhorting the mountaineers to rally around his standard and become soldiers in the army of industrial protest and reform.

The simple minded mountain folk, to whom a few words written or printed on white paper are as magic, have respect for Carl, and many of them have enrolled themselves under his command. For several weeks they have attended regular drills on one of the level mountain benches, where the motley assemblage of lank and swarthy mountaineers, under Browne's pompous leadership, have been perfecting themselves in the manual of arms and the movements of the company.

A singular thing told in this connection is the statement of the station agent at Riverton that Browne a few days ago received 200 stand of arms, with quite a large supply of ammunition. Whence these guns came or for what use they are to be placed in the hands of Browne's company of mountaineers is thus far a mystery. Some residents of the community believe that Captain Cullen has secured these rifles, and it is thought that when the mountain recruits have been sufficiently drilled, an effort will be made to tender their services to the commander of the insurgent army in Cuba. Cullen has sent out a large number of nicely engraved invitations to people who might be inclined to sympathize with the Cuban cause, soliciting contributions of money and firearms, and some connection is supposed to exist between this action on his part and Browne's enlistment of men. To the mountaineers, who are at this time of the year idle and ready for any kind of sport, the adventure is doubly inviting, and they seem to be getting a great deal of fun out of it.

Browne has kept in correspondence with many of the famous army that marched into Washington in May of 1894 and has sent out to them the same invitation which has been given to the mountaineers. These notifications assure the old followers of Coxey that if they will come to the Blue Ridge they need have no concern about rations or a place to sleep, one, that a full supply of arms and accoutrements has been provided for as many of them as will return to the old cause. So far, it is said, none of the old followers of Browne and Coxey has made his appearance. The well to do people of the neighborhood, while they look upon Browne's operations with the mountaineers as a good deal of a joke, do not look with favor upon the assembling of Coxey's old forces in their vicinity. They are therefore keeping a sharp watch on Browne's operations, and the county and municipal authorities hold themselves in readiness to squelch Browne's Quixotic undertaking whenever it threatens to bring upon the people of Riverton and Front Royal the horrors of an invasion by an undisciplined and lawless body of men.—Washington Star.

A Third Gavel For Speaker Reed.

Speaker Reed has received a third gavel with a history. It was presented by Representative Hitt of Illinois, and it was made from a fragment of the old gavel block used by Abraham Lincoln in his rail splitting days. It was the intention of Mr. Hitt to make a formal presentation to Mr. Reed at the caucus on Saturday, but he observed that Mr. Reed was more or less embarrassed with a rather of gavels and accompanying remarks on that occasion and withheld the Lincoln gavel and quietly presented it when congress opened.

It Will Be Somebody's Waterloo.

Among the strange coincidences of history none is stranger than that now presented in Maryland, where a man named Bonaparte is fighting for the senatorship against a man named Wellington. And it looks as if Waterloo were going to be avenged.

THRILLING SEA STORY.

Crew of an American Vessel Rescued as It Was Sinking.

The British steamer Rosemorran, Captain Norman, from Norfolk and Newport News for Leith, landed at Plymouth the other evening the captain of the American ship Belle O'Brien, from San Francisco, before reported foundered, together with his wife and 18 of the ship's crew. These were picked up from a small boat on Nov. 27 as they were abandoning the sinking wreck.

Captain Colley makes the following statement:

"Our voyage was a stormy one from the first, and the ship was soon driven from her course and began to leak. We were not anxious for our safety until we got within 75 miles of Queenstown, on Nov. 17, when the ship encountered a terrific gale, with tremendous seas, which swept her decks and stove and carried off her bulwarks and deckhouse. The ship was then leaking badly and taking water very fast.

"The crew manned the pumps constantly in the effort to save our lives. The water continued to gain, however, and on Nov. 19 the water in the hold was ten feet deep. In the meantime one man had fallen overboard and was drowned. On Nov. 19 we got out the longboat and towed her astern. Three seamen and the second officer were in the boat. The high seas caused the boat to plunge so violently that it became necessary to cut the painter to prevent her from swamping. The boat was without oars and was provided with neither food nor water. When the painter was cut, the boat drifted away into the darkness, and I immediately had another boat lowered, manned by the first and third officers and five men, provided with flashlights to search for her.

"The Belle O'Brien watched for hours for the return of the boats, but we saw neither of them again. Soon another gale sprang up, and the pumps became very difficult to work on account of the grain in the hold choking them. As the water gained, the grain continued to swell until it bulged the planks on the ship's sides and heaved her decks. We did not relax our desperate efforts to keep the ship afloat until we were sighted and picked up by the Rosemorran."

TOOK PART OF HIS SKULL.

Klumpeter Will Have a Piece of Silver In Its Place.

What promises to be a very successful trephining operation was performed on Policeman Peter Klumpeter of Brooklyn the other morning by Dr. Sappirl.

Klumpeter, who is the only Danish policeman in Brooklyn, has been suffering for the last eight months from an abscess, growing gradually into the form of a bunch of carbuncles back of his right ear. The surgeons discovered that the abscess was caused by a portion of the skull being diseased.

After he was placed under the influence of ether Dr. Sappirl cut through the abscess, and with a fine saw removed the diseased part of the skull, leaving a hole about the size of a silver quarter. The patient was watched carefully, and is doing so well that the surgeon feels confident that the operation will prove a success.

As soon as the blood that flows from the wound has been sufficiently staunched a silver plate will be placed over the opening in the skull. If all goes well, Policeman Klumpeter will be back at his post within two or three weeks.

STRANGE TELEPATHY.

Miss Morris' Awful Premonition of Her Mother's Death.

While a fair was being held in the basement of St. Mary's Church of the Immaculate Conception, Williamsburg, N. Y., the other night, Mrs. Sarah Jane Morris, a widow, was suddenly taken ill and died a few moments later.

Her daughter Maggie was to have sung at the fair that evening, and Mrs. Morris had gone there to hear her. At the moment when her mother was taken ill Miss Morris was practicing in the academy adjoining the church.

Without knowing of the illness, Miss Morris suddenly stopped singing, and when her teacher asked her what the cause was she began to cry and said she was all choked up. Presently a messenger arrived and told Miss Morris that her mother had been taken ill. While Miss Morris and the sister were hurrying to the church they met another messenger, who told Miss Morris that her mother was dead.

No Canals on Mars.

At the regular monthly meeting of the section of astronomy and physics of the New York Academy of Sciences, Professors Rees and Jacoby and Charles Post read papers attacking the alleged discoveries of lines and canals on the planet Mars. The attacks were principally directed against Percival Lowell of Boston, who while at Flagstaff, A. T., claimed to have seen the same lines and canals discovered on the planet by Signor Schiaparelli in Italy. After the reading there was a general discussion, and the conclusion arrived at was that these people were romancers and not astronomers. The academy therefore discarded the theory of canals and lines on the planet Mars until such time as they could be seen more plainly, or at least by a greater number of persons.

Schlatter and His Copper Rod.

Francis Schlatter, "the healer," arrived at Trinidad, Colo., the other day. The alleged miracle worker carries a copper rod of curious shape that he claims was presented to him by the Father. Schlatter says the rod possesses magical powers, and he guards it with great care.

STORIES OF THE DAY.

Funny Side of Life at the Capitol at Washington.

Unroll the map of the United States and draw a straight line from Boston to San Francisco. There is a Democratic representative in congress from each end of the line, which will not cross or lie south of another Democratic district. The Boston district is represented by John F. Fitzgerald, who was born in that city in 1865. The San Francisco district is represented by James G. Maguire, who was also born in Boston in 1858. These lonely Democrats shook hands across the continent for the first time yesterday.

"How did it happen?" asked Maguire.

"I don't know," replied Fitzgerald, "but I think it is because God is still good to the Irish."

Representative Harmer of Pennsylvania is the father of the Republican side of the house. "After carefully looking over this body," remarked Representative Steele of Indiana, "I am convinced that Solomon in all his glory was not better equipped with offspring than is Father Harmer."

The Democratic caucus over the four appointees allowed the minority was more hotly contested and more exciting than the average election for speaker. The principal contest was between Isaac Hill of Ohio and Henry Mahler of Illinois, for the position of assistant sergeant-at-arms. Ike Hill, who has held the place for many years, was extremely worried over his prospects. He protected his own defeat, but came out triumphant by a vote of 51 to 43.

"What a fool I am," said he. "I've been making a mountain out of a Mahler-Hill."

Representative Curtis of Kansas proudly claims a fair share of Indian blood. He won a good seat in the house raffle, and then courteously surrendered it to Dingley of Maine, whose black eyes, aquiline nose and dark complexion give him an even more pronounced Indian aspect.

"Curtis is part Injun," said one of his colleagues from Kansas, "but he's not an Injun giver, at any rate."

Rev. Mr. Milburn, chaplain of the senate, and Rev. Mr. Conden, the newly elected chaplain of the house, are both blind.

"If these two chaplains weren't blind," said Representative Crowley of Texas, "they would have to wear blinkers. Congress wants its sins prayed for, but not seen."

"The only reason why I object to blind chaplains in both houses," said Senator Lodge, "is that the American press may think it was done intentionally."

Representative Josiah Patterson of Tennessee, who has been making sound money speeches through the south, brings back discouraging reports of his experiences in Mississippi. He encountered Private John Allen of Tupelo in joint debate at that place.

"There was a good crowd," says Mr. Patterson, "and I gave them a logical, convincing and absolutely irrefutable demonstration of the sound money argument in a short discourse of an hour and a half. And then what do you think Allen did? He just got up and walked to the front of the platform and said: 'Friends and fellow citizens, what this man says is all bosh. I will demolish him with a single question.'

"Then he turned on me like a tiger, his eyeballs glaring, and his forefinger shaking under my nose, and shouted: 'Mr. Patterson, I want you to tell this intelligent audience, without the slightest attempt at evasion, whether it is or is not true that an English duke was recently paid in New York city the sum of $15,000,000 in gold as a bribe to induce him to marry an American heiress?'

"Then that set up a yell which you could hear five miles off, and they shouted: 'You've got him, John! Stick to him! Don't let him throw you off, John. He can't answer it! You've settled him.'

"I took the next train north."

"I say," said Felix McCloskey, "do you know why the senators, when they heard there was a new red carpet in the house, got a new green one for their chamber?"

"No," replied Henry Clay Sulzer. "You know more about these fellows here than I do, Felix. Why was it?"

"Because the senate is the upper house, and proposed that even in the American congress they would do all in their power to keep the green above the red. These Republican senators know how to catch the Irish vote." And Felix winked and Sulzer nodded wisely.

The only original Felix McCloskey, whose face almost alone makes the hotel corridors homelike to wandering Democrats familiar with Washington during the last two congresses, sat in the Arlington the other night retailing stories of the period of 1849. McCloskey's stories are far from clerical. As he talked a stranger took notes. McCloskey now and then casting sidelong glances at the writer. When at last the latter went away McCloskey exploded: "That's what I call cheek. To take notes of my talk and put it in a paper without my consent."

One of McCloskey's companions, who is something of a wag, ran after the reporter and soon returned laughing.

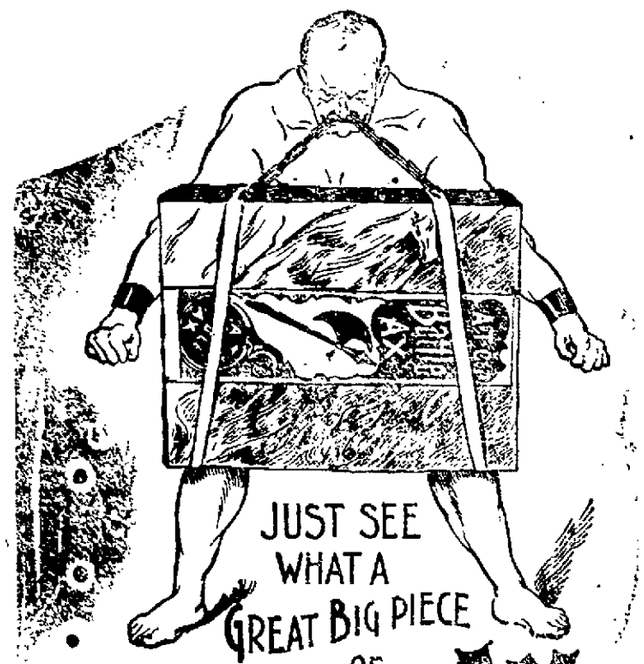

"That's all right. He mistook you for Dr. Talmage, that's all."

"I'm sure," said McCloskey, straightening up in his chair and rubbing his smooth shaven face with a pleased expression, "that's another matter, of course."

And all the audience smiled.—New York World.

Corey's Dream.

General Coxey, the ex commonweal leader, announced the other night at Pittsburg that he is a candidate for the presidency.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Nine members of the society for the prevention of labor found lodging and split wood at the Hotel Carlos over Wednesday night.

F. Long was the first prisoner to come before Mayor Nichols Wednesday evening. Long is an employe on the Columbia street sewer, and Wednesday afternoon spent all the money he had, with the exception of one dollar, for a police-court drunk. This morning he explained that he had not been particularly drunk but the mayor had a different opinion, and took the one dollar he had as a fine, another dollar on top of it and three dollars and sixty cents as costs. The mayor also confiscated a murderous looking knife that Long had in possession. Long did not have the other four-sixty and was sent back to his cell to brood over his troubles.

Andrew Thompson, who has been chopping wood, came up next. Andrew explained that he had intended to go to Licking county, his home, Wednesday, but got out with the boys and became one of them. His friends were convivial and he could not refrain from the enjoyments of their society, which finally caused him to seek rest on a scrap pile, with the canopy of heaven and the falling snow for a covering. It was thus that Andrew was found by a policeman and escored to the "home of the unfortunates." Mayor Nichols assessed Andrew one dollar and costs, but the price was not forthcoming and he was taken back to cell No. 4 to rest. Thompson had evidently been robbed. He stated that he had a pocketbook with three dollars in money when he left his friends, but there was nothing in his pockets but a knife when arrested.

There is a warrant in the hands of the police here, for Frank Hamilton. Hamilton attempted to steal an umbrella from the Vestibule Wednesday night and Officer Cleveland placed him under arrest. As Hamilton and the officer started up street, Hamilton asked him to go with him to the Kerr House as he could get a bondsman there and put up for his appearance. The officer complied with his request and his prisoner on arriving at the office remarked that he did not see his bondsman and asked the officer to step into the wash room with him. He did so, but the required bondsman was not to be seen. Hamilton then walked to the door of the bar and pretended to look in, but rushed out of a rear door and gave the officer the slip and he hasn't been seen since, although the officers have been on the lookout for him.

CROWSER'S BROTHER ARRIVES.

He Comes From Columbus To Look After the Remains of the Unfortunate Man.

A brother of E. C. Crowser, the man killed at the Junction Wednesday, arrived from Columbus Wednesday evening and made arrangements for the removal of his remains to either Columbus, Pittsburg or Denver. His mother resides near Denver and is now on her way to Columbus, and upon her decision the disposal of the remains depends.

Crowser has been all over the world. His brother said that he was a wanderer and had seen most of the country, traveling from place to place and securing work, and remaining in one place until he became dissatisfied with the location. In this manner he became a great traveler. The brother is a resident of Columbus and was much effected by the death of his younger brother.

Maccabees Elect Officers.

Model Tent, Knights of the Maccabees, elected officers for the ensuing year Wednesday night. The following are the principal officers elected: H. D. Uhline, commander; Lorenzo Booth, sergeant; J. M. Brigel, record keeper; Benj. Beiber, finance keeper; E. A. Bishop, chaplain; Daniel Evans, master of arms.

It was also decided to hold a social session for the members on the 22d of January, the date of the installation.

Come One, Come All.
